Born at the crossroads of Colonial America, in the eastern counties of historic Pennsylvania, PENN COLONY preserves the most imaginative era of American design. From many hours spent visiting antique shops and museums in Bucks, Berks and Lancaster Counties, Broyhill Premier designers rediscover, with PENN COLONY, the time-honored motifs of Provincial art and craftsmanship.

Here then, is a new and authentic interpretation of Provincial styling... a blending of Pilgrim, Shaker, Pennsylvania Dutch and Southern Colonial... timelessly appropriate for the decoration of America's homes today—whether traditional or contemporary.

From Early New England comes practical utility; from the Shaker sect, a restrained, honest simplicity; from Pennsylvania Dutch folk art, a flowered intaglio carving inspired by an original cookie mold and accented on several brightly painted pieces; from the dignity of Colonial originals, double molded drawers, ogee bases, antiqued hardware and the aged patina of warm Butternut wood, finished a mellow Spice brown color with high-low shading reminiscent of prized Colonial antiques; all merged to unite the Pilgrim Century into a timeless present.

PENN COLONY was created for those who enjoy warmth, charm and serenity all through the house. In the firelight of your living room PENN COLONY creates an atmosphere of invitation and welcome. Picture yourself seated on a roomy, comfortable sofa flanked by colorful spice cabinets, or writing letters at the pigeon-hole desk secretary with its beautifully carved door panels. Imagine entertaining in a dining room decorated with one of several magnificent buffets with a choice of storage cabinets on top (including one with pierced pewter panel doors). Select from a variety of sweeping harvest, oval, rectangular or drop-leaf tables. Choose your chairs from Windsor, captain or ladderback variety. And wouldn't your bedroom be handsome with the graceful tester bed or painted Hitch cock head-board surrounded by convenient storage pieces with the intaglio motif which keynotes the collection. Then for your family room, what could be more perfect than the two-piece corner cabinet in red or natural Butternut?

PENN COLONY is American Provincial... scaled to modern American room sizes and coordinated to compliment who treasure the tradition and heritage of Colonial times. Step into history... forever fresh and enduring... with PENN COLONY, an original collection by Broyhill Premier. ONLY THE LOOK IS EXPENSIVE!

Benjamin Franklin never had a PENN COLONY bed but he probably would have if he could have, and with reason. From an authentic selection, all in charming Early Americana design, comes the panel beds shown here, one with regular foot, one with low foot. Careful attention has been paid to characteristics of wood on posts and panels for an unusually attractive effect. Night stand with doors carries out the PENN COLONY carved motif. Night stand with legs is available in both Butternut and antique black finish. Both compliment all beds in the grouping—move into the living room with ease.

The test of dining room service pieces is whether they fill the need for storage and display, while being lovely to look at. PENN COLONY buffets and chinas pass this test with flying colors. In the following service pieces, you'll appreciate the many antique touches such as the pewter-finished tin doors on one hutch top, the hutch tops themselves, unusual door pulls, variety of drawer sizes, handsome choice of wood graining, as well as the carved motif seen throughout the grouping. In each piece there is desirable practicality, plus the basic elegance that deserves a focal point in any dining area.

Here you see PENN COLONY'S design details skillfully translated to table and chair groupings that match in warmth and timelessness the rest of the collection. For large-family use, several tables extend, have extra leaves available. Design forms of chairs make them perfect all through the house. PENN COLONY'S soft, mellow Butternut finish provides a beautiful background for entertaining and for everyday living.

Contemporary goes American Provincial with ease in PENN COLONY. The room divider, a modern invention, takes on the handsome, historical appearance of the grouping itself. Divider base and deck are finished on both sides for utility, and both offer always needed extra storage space. Heart motif on deck is delightfully reminiscent of Pennsylvania folk art.

A quill pen, sealing wax, parchment paper could rest in quiet harmony on this drop front pigeon-hole desk from the PENN COLONY collection. From the custom look of its carved door panels to the gently rounded legs on the base, this desk secretary is worthy of the attention and discussion it will always get. Tall, proud, lovely lines, yet an ideal place to keep notes and records handy. Windsor side chair shown here is from PENN COLONY dining room groupings and is a natural companion piece for the desk secretary.

A place for everything and everything in its place. This is not only possible but probable when you have the advantage of the four basic pieces from PENN COLONY as shown here. The accent is on livable solidity without heaviness in this wall arrangement and the knowing use of wood graining adds the interesting character of age. Shelves on hutch tops let you arrange your display of treasures to best advantage. Drawers and shelves on door and chest units give you space aplenty for storage. Drop lid desk unit conceals additional useful shelves and writing surface.

Rediscover the drama of a dominant and important furniture piece, with the imposing corner cabinet from the PENN COLONY collection. In antiqued Butternut finish or a gay hand-painted red, this two-piece unit is a distinguished and very much American Provincial addition to any room, provides a happy bonus of storage space. For smaller area emphasis, consider PENN COLONY'S interesting spice chest in yellow and versatile green or Butternut commode shown here.
